What good are restful Benches IN A SHADY SQUARE?

The "farm trade" is the chief business in many Georgia towns. In your town, is the farmer treated as a "best" customer? Does he even have a place to sit and rest a while?

The farmers, like everybody else, relish appreciation. Something as simple as comfortable benches could bring more trade to your town.

PAIR LOVELY PEAFOWLS COME FROM WASHINGTON Monday Mrs. D. B. Bland received a pair of beautiful peafowls from her son, Pfc. Grady Bland, who is stationed in Spokane, Wash. The birds came by express valued at $50. The peacock's tail was so very long that the tips of the feathers had to be cut in order to get it in the tall box. "Mr. Peacock" is embarrassed over his cut feathers and won't spread his tail at all. His mate is quiet and unassuming, but plainly shows she wants her mate to lead her back to the Pacific border.

Five weeks ago Pfc. Bland mailed his mother thirteen of the fowl's eggs. Three were broken in the trip by mail. Mrs. Bland gave the remaining ten eggs to a chicken hen that was ready to "take her nest." At this end of four weeks one of the ten eggs had hatched. It resembles a young turkey. The rare birds are on display at the Bland home.

Pfc. Irvin Lockhart, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Lockhart, who has been actively engaged in overseas duties for the past three years, is at home again, having recently received an honorable discharge. He has been in eight major engagements in various theaters of war.

GOVERNOR ARNALL GAINS ATTENTION

They Took Notice Of The Governor at Recent National Governors' Confab

Atlanta, July 9. (GSP)—Yes, sir, wherever Georgia's governor Ellis Arnall goes they sit up and take notice. That he is a real national figure there is no doubt. Latest of evidence of that was seen at the recent National Governors' conference at Mackinac Island, Mich. He practically stole the show, according to accounts of newsmen who covered the pow-wow.

Governor Arnall was invited to participate on national radio hook-ups emanating from the session. He was seated at the head table with such national leaders as New York's Dewey, Michigan's Kelly, the host, Utah's Maw, the chairman, and a few others. And on the all-important resolutions committee—again along with Dewey, Kelly and other national recognized leaders—was Georgia's Ellis Arnall.

In short, he was in great demand at the three-day session. He attracted as much if not more attention from the other governors and the sixty-odd newspaper reporters covering the event than any other delegate. And when he spoke—telling those present and the world about his home state—he was heard.

After a lengthy and spirited session of the resolutions committee, Gov. Arnall emerged victorious in everything he had made a fight for except endorsement of his battle for equalized freight rates throughout the nation. He did not formally bring that up.

It is reported that Governor Arnall stood up in the committee room and fought Governor Thomas E. Dewey, the G.O.P.'s unsuccessful presidential candidate in the last election, on an attempt to criticize the present national administration and also succeeded in initialing a resolution directing the Council of State Governments to make a study of the insurance companies returned to the jurisdiction of the various states.

Although outnumbered on the committee, the Democratic minority refused to pass out a single resolution that criticized the Democratic administration in any way. Gov. Arnall sponsored a resolution the committee adopted directing the conference's executive committee to confer with the president at the earliest possible time to urge the return of employment offices and services to the various states.

Register Fighter Is With Army In Italy

Headquarters 62nd Fighter Wing In Italy—T/S James H. Watson, son of Mrs. K. E. Watson, Register, Ga., served as clerk in A-1 section, with the 62nd Wing, a fighter-bomber component of the Twelfth Air Force, in the final phases of the Mediterranean campaign. He has served overseas more than twenty-eight months.

Now awaiting redeployment, the 62nd Fighter Wing dealt some of the most punishing blows in the history of modern aerial warfare to the Axis forces as they attempted to make a last stand in Northern Italy. Aircraft and ground stations of the Wing operated combined to help blast a path which permitted the Fifth and Eighth Armies to chase the Nazis out of the Apennines and across the Po Valley where they eventually surrendered on May 2, 1945.

T/S Watson's outfit was formed in December, 1942, and during the bitter Tunisian, Sicilian and Italian campaigns, employed various combinations of P-47 Thunderbolts, Beaufighters, Mosquitos and P-61 Black Widows.

Drive Opened For Charter's Passage

Atlanta, July 9 (GSP)—The statewide campaign to win ratification of Georgia's new constitution is on. It formally opened this week in Atlanta with a city-wide meeting of civic clubs at the Ansley Hotel, sponsored by the Atlanta Rotary Club.

Principal speaker was Gov. Ellis Arnall whose discussion of the new document was broadcast on radio station WSB. A transcript was made so that his remarks may be heard by other groups over the state during the month-long campaign.

Ivan Allen Sr., chairman of the committee for constitutional ratification, predicts an overwhelming victory for the state's new streamlined constitution which will replace, as he puts it, Georgia's "horse and buggy" constitution.

Georgia voters will go to the polls on August 7 to pass on the new document. Absentee servicemen and women are being given every opportunity to participate in the election.

Miller's Birthday

NEXT SUNDAY is going to be another of those events at Pembroke! Editor Frank Miller is going to be a year older, and is asking his friends to join him in rejoicing over the occasion.

When Frank Miller invites friends to his birthday party, he is not only asking them to join him in celebrating what he means—dining means eating at his parties.

Funniest thing we ever knew about Frank's birthday is they fall on Sunday every year. It never has been that way with us. We started in on Friday at our home, and each year slipped a day until we had gone around the entire calendar from Friday to Friday. Sometimes it has been sort of inconvenient to celebrate, because when a birthday falls on press day, we just have to let it pass unnoticed—for nothing can interfere with press day at our house.

Must They Be Shown?

A NEWS STORY from Berlin under recent date line gives an inkling that the time is near at hand to begin teaching the German people that America is not a perpetual Santa Claus for the world.

This dispatch gives the information that "Dr. Arthur Werner, Russian-appointed mayor of Berlin, said today that Berliners had witnessed the arrival of British and American forces with 'great anticipation'... because we expect them to send us food."

The mayor, 86 years old, warmed up as he continued his words of anticipation: "The Russians gave Berliners large quantities of foodstuffs, including flour, rice, white beans, starch and some meat; Berlin's great food difficulty at present is fats. . . . The Red Army cannot give us butter fats, because they don't have much themselves; the Germans during the occupation of Russia slaughtered too much livestock and drove too much off to Germany when they retreated."

And the words of the German leader, so simply hopeful, make us shudder at the thought of possible justice to a fallen enemy who so much deserved to fall. Shall we hear their wall of hungry distress above the cry of our faithful allies who have suffered so long while fighting the evil German machine for the mere right to live. How much of our charity shall we divert from these faithful allies, and why? How far can we go with our charity before we have done a crime against our own people?

at home who themselves are beginning to feel the pinch of hunger? Will we act wisely if we forgive and forget before the lesson has fully sunk in into the minds and lives of those who, time and again, have shown their evil capacity to ignore the cry of the innocent?

In dealing with men, kindness is an effective weapon; dealing with brutes a good deal of force makes more lasting impressions. Must the Germans be shown?

Chicken or Egg First?

IN THE HAZY days of the long ago before the advent of moving pictures and pool rooms—when there was no modern means by which men could escape from the humdrum of home life for the evenings—the rural debating club was a popular social feature.

Many very important subjects were brought in for settlement—most of which subjects are still unsettled. For instance, there was the question of the hen and the egg—which came first. There was good argument on both sides, but the matter always ended with a vote of thanks for the presence of both hens and eggs.

From that day to the present there have constantly arisen problems equally intractable—questions of cause and effect. It is a smart man who can always see the relationship between two kindred matters and recognize exactly which was induced by the other. Today there is the question of a new state constitution which has grown into a side-line discussion. It is charged by some unfriendly sources that the newspapers of the state which favor the adoption of the constitution, are so friendly because they have been given the contract for publishing the document, the compensation for which is not insignificant. What we see in this position is two-edged: If those who are friendly are so because they have been bought, then it follows that those who are unfriendly are so because they have been sold. Escape that if you can.

Personally, we believe the governor, who placed the publication of this document throughout the state, was justified in selecting as his medium of conveyance those papers which were friendly; we believe he was justified in eliminating those which were vehemently unfriendly. That would be true in any sort of intelligent commercial transaction.

And this leads down to the proposition that the voters of Georgia are being given an opportunity, through friendly medium, to learn individually each for himself the details of the document upon which the voters are to declare their will at the early forthcoming election. Candidly, we believe few persons are sufficiently familiar with the existing constitution to intelligently decide in the matter of endorsement or rejection; in political matters it comes that way—men vote for measures according to their appreciation of and confidence in those who support those measures. With this constitution it is going to be exactly that way: The line-up is already largely one of factions. If you must take advice, you'll take it from those whom you most trust.

Georgia Democrats Are Declared Loyal

Atlanta, July 9 (GPS).—Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan, the dynamic chairman of the Democratic national committee, who came to Georgia last week to participate in the Truman Fourth Day at Gainesville, left no doubt in anybody's mind as to what he and his party think of Georgia and Georgia Democrats. Met at the airport by J. Lon Duckworth, chairman of the state Democratic committee, and M. E. Thompson, secretary to Gov. Arnall, in the governor's absence, Hannegan said: "We in the Democratic national committee think very highly of Gov. Arnall and the Democrats of Georgia. They have cooperated with us in every way and we appreciate it. . . . The Democrats here in Georgia have given me every aid that I could wish. They're true Democrats and we in the national administration appreciate their efforts and their good wishes."

Negro Club Women Are Preserving Food

The negro home demonstration club women are spending much of their time in the community canning plant and in their homes preserving all the food that they possibly can, in order that they may be able to feed their own families and also help out on the home front in this food shortage. For the month of June more than 2,000 quarts of fruits and vegetables was reported to the extension office (negro) that had been canned.

During the canning season a friendly rivalry has developed between the clubs in this manner. At the end of each month each club member reports her canning record for that month and according to the report record we honor the highest rated club and some of the outstanding individuals. The honored club this month is the Brooklet club, and the June canning champions are Mrs. Ruth, Willow Hill; Mrs. Mamie Lee Pope's Academy and the other three members of the Brooklet Club, Mrs. Flossie Johnson, Mrs. Lou Ella Google and Mrs. Ollie Johnson.

Much of the credit for the club's canning progress goes to G. T. Merritt and R. W. Campbell, both vocational instructors in the county who have worked hard as supervisors in the different canning plants.
